

WHAT IS THE DEPARTMENT OF FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS?

It is Indiana's Department of Financial Institutions and is a service of the State Government for the people of Indiana.

The department was created by the Indiana Financial Institutions Acts of 1933 with the responsibility of supervising commercial banks, trust companies, private banks, savings banks, building & loan associations, credit unions, and finance companies incorporated under the laws of the State of Indiana.

The department is responsible for protecting the interest of depositors, shareholders, borrowers, and consumers. The department is a self-supporting branch of State Government and its operating expenses are not paid out of the State General Fund.

The department consists of a division for Depository Institutions and a division for Non-Depository Institutions.

THE NON-DEPOSITORY DIVISION

The Non-Depository Division regulates the following businesses:

Licensed Lenders
Credit Sellers
Consumer Credit Lessors
Pawnbrokers
Rental Purchase Businesses
Check Cashers
Money Transmitters
Budget Service Companies

Non-Depository institutions include a wide variety of businesses from small independent companies to large multi-state companies.

The division protects citizens of the state by ensuring that these non-depository institutions comply with the Indiana statutes regulating their transactions. This is accomplished through licensing and registration; examination; and consumer and industry education.

We are constantly reviewing our procedures, policies, and philosophies to achieve our goal to represent and serve the consumer and industry.
